“Nurses’ Voices

From the Northern Ireland Troubles

“This brilliant book reflects on a time of dreadful loss and tragedy... today’s nurses should read these first-hand accounts of what true care and compassion are really all about.”

Mary Spinks, former Director of the Florence Nightingale Foundation

“These raw accounts of nursing, in situations that most of us will hopefully never face, make compelling reading. A gripping and brutally honest tapestry of dark days of conflict, yet enlivened by many flashes of humour.”

John Adams, Senior Lecturer, Anglia University

“A fascinating window onto the Troubles and an important contribution to the social history of nursing.”

Dr Marc Cornock, Lecturer in Law, The Open University
